tariff because they did not understand it. It is quite probable, however, that if they did not understand it they felt it, and that, because it made them uncomfortable, they emphatically said such a reform was not what they wanted.

wanted.

At any rate, the consumer has found life harder since this reform than before, and if there is a workingman anywhere who has had his wages increased by virtue of its operation he has not yet made himself known. Plenty of mills and factories have been closed, thousands of men thus lest employment. and a from thus lost employment, and we daily hear of reduced wages; but the benefits promised from this reform, and its advantage to people who really need relief are not apparent.

RECIPROCITY IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION. The provision it contains permitting reciprocity of trade in certain cases, depending on the action of the President, is an admission, as far as it goes, against the theory upon which this reform is predicated, and it lamely limps in the direction of free commercial exchanges.

If "hypocrisy is the homage vice pays to virtue," reciprocity may be called the homage prohibitory protection pays to genuine tariff reform.

to genuine tariff reform.

The demand in your platform for free raw materials ought, it seems to me, to be warmly seconded by the citizens of your state. The advantages to the people of Rhode Island of such a policy do not seem to be questionable, and I am not here to discuss them in detail; but not here to discuss them in detail; but all I have said touching the conduct and record of the Democratic party and its opponents in regard to tariff legislation is in support of the proposition that all who desire the special relief referred to in your party supports. who desire the special reflect relatives to in your platform, or any other improvement in our tariff laws in the general interest of the people must look to the Democratic party for it. The manufacture of the people must be in the control of the turer who sees in free raw materials a reduced cost of his products resulting in an increased consumption and an extension of his markets, and a constant activity and return for his invested capital, can hardly trust the party which first resisted any reform in the tariff, then juggled with it, and at last flatly refused him the relief he still needs. THE SILVER QUESTION ISN'T IN IT.

Our opponents must, in the coming national canvass, settle accounts with us on the issue of tariff reform. It will not do for them to say to us that it is an old and determined contention. The ten commandments are thousands of years old, but they and the doctrine of tariff reform will be taught and preached until mankind and the Republican party shall heed the injunction, "Thou shalt not steal."

As I leave you, let me say to you that your cause deserves success, and let me express the hope that the close of your canvass will bring you no regrets on account of activity relaxed or opportunities lost. Demonstrate to your people the merits of your cane, and trust ple the merits of your cause, and trust them. Above all things, banish every personal feeling of discontent, and let every personal consideration be merged in a determination, pervading your ranks everywhere, to win a victory. With a cause so just, and with activity, vicilance, harmony and determination vigilance, harmony and determination on the part of Rhode Island's staunch Democracy, I believe you will not fail.

REED AND M'KINLEY

The Attractions of Two Mammoth Meetings-An Evening Devoted to Protection. Providence, R. I., April 3.-While daylight lasted the Democrats had a monopoly of the demonstration, but with the darkness there was a clashing of the clans, and the Republicans appeared in full force. There was music and red fire without stint. Meetings were announced for both the big auditoriums of Providence, Infantry hall and Music hall, and both were more than filled, with many hundreds on the outside. Reed and McKinley were the star attractions, and spoke at both meetings. the ex-speaker opening at one hall and McKinley at the other, and then changng later on. Reed inaugurated his speech by a sarcastic attack upon Cleveland and his present campaigning trip. In touching upon this subject he said:

The Democrats were not satisfied to allow Rhode Island to settle its own election. They deliberately made this the battle-ground of the country. They even called out the household troops. One man has come here who has waived all other considerations for this one purpose. I presume the other considerations were a fear that he might be mistaken for David B. Hill, or that he might be suspected of a willingness to take the Presidency if it was forced upon him. But the people of Rhode Island, while they may not be conse-Island, while they may not be conse-crated to any great public cause, have plenty of common sonse. If their heads are not as big as those of some other people, what heads they have contain plenty of brains. The people of to-day know more than Thomas Jef-ferson ever did, more than Andrew Jackson ever did, and more than some other Passidants area will know if they other Presidents ever will know if they live a thousand years.

Mr. Reed's sallies were delivered with his usual Yankee drawl and were re-ceived with much laughter and ap-plause. Turning to the tariff he said,

Here in New England they talk free raw materials, but in the wild and boundless west binder twine must be on the free list, because it is a finished product, and cotton ties must be free to please a few southern gentlemen. Their object is not to protect the property of the country, but to eatch votes. The American system is not a system unless it benefits all people equally and the American market shall belong to the whole American people. They talk about the beautiful times in 1848, when every country had free trade, but now no country has free trade, or expects to have it, but England and the Democratic party. The effect of the protective tariff is to cheapen prices of all pro-ducts: to distribute wealth more equitably among all people. I do not believe that all the wealth should be divided equally among mankind. If you did it to-day by to-morrow some bright fellow would be a dollar or two ahead. I can would be a dollar or two ahead. I can see with my own eyes that under a pro-tective taril men are receiving more of the comierts of life than eyer before. the comiorts of life than ever before, Years ago $20 a month and 75 cents a day were thought to be all right for wages enough, but that day for these people has passed away, and all the Democratic orators can't convince you to the contrary. They talk about the beautiful past, and cry that everything is now going to ruin, but you know from facts that it is not so, and do not let their flowery orators make you forget it. get it.

M'KINLEY IN DEFENSE OF HIS BILL.

A portion of Major McKinley's speech was devoted to going into the details of the benefits accruing from the new tariff law. He said that $2,000,000 that was formerly sent to England for cotton ties was now kept at home, and that one-seventh of the cotton ties used in this country were now manufactured in Olio. He told of new woolen yarn plants and pearl button factories employing hundreds of operatives, that had been started as a direct result of the changed tariff, and said these were but samples of the progress made. The

we will be ready for free trade in this country when the other countries bring their labor up to ours, but we will never bring our labor down to theirs. This all lays with the workingmen of this country, and I have confidence enough in them to believe they will do it. It is also said the results of protec-tion all go to the manufacturer. The workingman who has worked on both sides of the water knows about this. No sides of the water knows about this. No nation has the promise of a higher destiny than ours. To-day, under thirty-one years of protective tariff, we lead overy nation. Why turn away from that splendid prosperity? Four times free trade has been tried, and in every varied that here has come hankrunter. We period there has come bankruptey. We don't intend to go back to that condition. The Democratic party cannot ropeal one page of that law in ten years. It has opened up a new life for many, and we do not intend to go backward.

AT THE THEATRES.

The Past Attractions and the ones that

"A Hole in the Ground," at the Opera House Saturday night failed to please the people. The farce is as funny as ever, and the company if anything better than when last here, but the fact is that the public is tired of Hoyt fun.

There was a good-sized audience.
Williams & Orr's Meteors gave a good show at the Grand the last half of the week, but business did not average up well. The show was not properly advertised. Cyclops and Sandowe, the strong men, are an attraction which has been excelled before the American people.

This week at the Opera House the attractions will be Lewis Morrison in "Faust" Thursday night and Nye and Burbank in their inimitable entertainment on Friday night. At the Grand the first half of the week will be taken up by "A Pair of Jacks." MORRISON'S "FAUST."

Mr. Morrison's Mephisto is a keen conception and the performance of a skilled actor, his delineation of the subtle, mocking fiend, his laugh—full of hatred, malice and infamous design—his facial expression and voice, combine to make the part realistic.

The scenic and electric accessories are something grand, and the attention paid to the little details heightens the effect to a marked degree. The climax of all—the revel of demons on Walpurgis night, on the summit of the Brocken—is a maryelously valid and materialism. is a marvelously word and mysterious scene. Here by this scene Mephisto leads Faust into a career of dissipation that eventually demands the fulfillment of his terrible contract.—Toledo Commercial.

NYE AND BURBANK.

Bill Nye has been here, and of him nothing need be said to Wheeling funlovers. A. P. Burbank, who is with him this season, is said to do as much toward entertaining the audience as did James Whitcomb Riley when he and Nye were here. The two give a performance which is really unique. They will no doubt have a good house when they come to Wheeling next Friday night.

ANOTHER SAW MILL DRAMA. When Aaron H. Woodhull re-wrote his sensational comedy drama, "Uncle Hiram," and put in a saw mill working in full view of the audience and a railroad train crossing the stage in thirty seconds he laid the foundation of his fortune. His play's packing the thea-tres everywhere and when Uncle Hiram is thrown upon the log truck and is about to be cut to pieces by a buzz saw, the audience is spellbound and jump to their feet and cheer as he is rescued by the dashing Troja Griswold as Bella. "Uncle Hiram" will beat the Grand the last three nights of this week. last three nights of this week.

"A PAIR OF JACKS" TO-NIGHT. At the Grand this evening Havlin's famous "A Pair of Jacks" company famous "A Pair of Jacks" company will commence a three nights' engagement. This comedy has been completely rewritten since its former production here, and is said to be one of the best farce comedies on the road. Seats are on sale at Genther's, and the Grand is sure to be crowded to the doors to-night.

STAGE SNOWPLAKES.

Gossip about the Plays and the Players. Local and General Favorites

It used to be said the playwrights were making dramas with an axe. Now the first requisite is a saw mill. An-other saw mill drama is coming. The tank gives way to the saw, and it must have its run.

Messrs. Nye and Burbank have been invited to be the guests of the Wheeling Press Club after their entertainment at the Opera House next Friday night

A benefit will be tendered Jeavons and Hathaway at Beethoven Hall, Sat-urday evening, April 9, on which occa-sion 2 number of local amateurs will appear.

Marshall, of East Liverpool, Ohio, will deliver a lecture on the above topic in the First Presbythe above topic in the First Presby-terian church, on the 19th of this month, in the interests of the West Vir-ginia Home for Aged and Friendless Women. The tickets will be 50 cents each and can be obtained from the di-rectors and managers. Mr. Marshall was in Palestine and Turkey last year, and has an attractive lecture on his travels. All who were so instructed and attracted by his preaching recently in the First church, will be glad of the opportunity to hear him again so soon.

CHRISTIAN MARRIAGE.

A Sermon on the Subject Delivered by Monsignor Sullivan.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH'S VIEWS.

Marriage as a Merely Natural Contract, and as a Sacrament of the Christian Dispensation-Those who Marry must be Free from Sin. Mixed Marriages Tolerated Only.

Rt. Rev. Mgr. Sullivan delivered the annual sermon on Christian marriage during high mass at the Cathedral vestorday. The statutes of the diocese of Wheeling require the rectors of Catholic churches to preach at least once a year on this subject, and Father Sullivan set forth the wisdom of the diocesan law, as shown by the importance of the subject to the individual, to civil and religious society. He defined marriage in its two-fold aspect, first as a merely natural contract and as a sacrament of the Christian dispensation. He dwelt on both as-pects at considerable length, but re-marked that it was with marriage as a sacrament he was to deat in his discourse to a Christian audience. He then defined marriage viewed as a sacrament—that is, a sacred sign and ceremony, ordained by Christ, by which grace is convoyed to the soul. If the contract of marriage is of such wast importance, all that importance remains in marriage as the sacrament, which is really the as the sacrament, which is really the contract elevated by the Redeemer's in-stitution to the rank of sacrament. At considerable length he dilated on the holy character of marriage as a sacrament, pointing out the essential elements and constituents of every sacrament; calling attention, by comparison, to its equality in holiness, in grace-input in proving rowse with the lending contraction. imparting power with the baptism, con-firmation, penance, holy eucharist and the rest of the seven sacraments. Bas-ing his remarks on the sanctity of marriage as a sacrament, he proceeded to demonstrate the fatal error of those who robbed marriage of its sacramental character, and the sad consequences of the attempt to reduce it to a merely civil or religious rite or ceremony. With the doctrine of the Catholic church on the subject kept steadily be-fore his audience's mind he offered some practically useful suggestions, such as the necessity of seeking God's guidance in so holy and important an affair; the wisdom, prudence and good sense, which should lead those contemplating marriage to consult person competent to give safe counsels. Such prudence is employed in ordinary business affairs, when they are sufficiently important to demand it. With far greater reason was counsel desirable in this matter, which is second in importance to no business of life.

He called attention to the necessity of suitable presenting present of suitable preparation, prayer, pure lives, great care in avoiding the impro-prieties and rash familiarities so unbecoming in young persons during court-ship. The reception of the sacraments of Penance and the Holy Eucharist was or Penance and the Holy Eucharist was mentioned especially, marriage being one of the sacraments requiring its recipients to be free from grievous sin, or in the state of grace. He dwelt with considerable warmth on what are termed mixed marriages, in which Catholics marry such as are not of their faith, showing how the Catholic clurch views such marriages. He stated that if dispensation is sometimes granted, it is no indication of change of the is no indication of change of the church's idea, but merely with reluct-ance through what appears a necessity; and even then only on certain condi-

At this point he treated of the im-

At this point he treated of the importance for those already married to keep ever before their eyes the sanctity of the marriage state, the grave duties imposed, the responsibilities entailed and their accountability to God. Since the happiness, temporal and eternal, of the individuals contemplating marriage, the welfare of civil and religious society, the proper Christian education of their offspring and the great and hallowed interests of the church are all at stake, he concluded by urging all the faithful to keep steadily before their eyes the teachings of the church on the holiness of Christian marriage as a sacrament, and of the marriage as a sacrament, and of the state into which so divine a sacrament ushers, and in which so many sacramental graces are conferred during the Catholic's wedded life.

A Close Call.

Mr. J. P Blaize, an extensive real estate dealer in this city, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern par of the state during the recent blizzard.

Mr. Blaize had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm, and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a severe case of pneumonia, or lung fever. Mr. Blaize sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the offect was wonderful and that in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaize re-gards his cure as simply wonderful and asys he will never travel again without a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remody.—The (Des Moines, Iowa,) Saturday Review. 50 cent bottles for sale by druggists gists.

the officers who shall conduct the business of our municipality for the next two years is now close upon us, and as a number of the gentlemen, who have had control of these affairs for several years past are again before us as candidates for re-election we wish to ask our citizens if a calm and impartial consideration of the various acts of these officials for the past two years warrant us in again placing them in power. Have they shown ability to manage the financial transactions of our city is a businesslike manner? Or have they shown either ability or disposition to impartially enforce the ordinances of the city? We think a plain, unbiased review of ness of our municipality for the next We think a plain, unbiased review of local history for a short time past will load every well meaning and law-abid-ing citizen to answer in the negative.

Among the many flagrant instances of neglect of duty, plain to all, and with-out color of an excuse, is the open and disgraceful violation of the Sunday law, the allowing of gambling in every form, in so open and notorious a manner that it goes without comment; the selling of beer to minors, an occurence that is so common that we may well conclude that no effort was ever made by our officers to check it.

To the Street Railway Company a franchise worth thousands of dollars was granted free of charge several years ago and up to the present time no real effort has been made to compel this corporation to comply with the terms of the ordinance, an indulgence that would be extended to ne private citizen, and a violation of contract that none of these offleers would endure if it were a matter affecting their own individual a matter affecting their own individual business. Five thousand dollars has business. Five thousand dollars has been spent on a city hall, to furnish stylish and comfortable quarters to city officials, while the taxpayers have had to wade through the mud of neglected streets and alleys, and worst of all thousands of dollars have been collected from our citizens in the form of taxes and then disbursed in the most reckless and unbusinesslike manner, without any intelligible statement being made of the financial transactions of our officials, while an examination of the officials, while an examination of the books of the city show an almost in-credible state of ignorance and ineridine state of ignorance and in-efficiency on the part of those whose duty it has been to carefully provide that the accounts of the city were kept in a manner that would enable the average citizen to get some idea of the public business. Let any of our tax-payers make this examination for them-selves and they will enable to examinaselves and they will quickly conclude that a change in our city officials is needed and needed very bally.
